Why He Didn't Jump.
Here is one that a young man who knows a good story when he hears it heard one railroad man tell another in a depot up the line the other day:

"We picked up a new Irishman somewhere up country an' set him to work brak'ing on a construction train at 3 cents a mile for wages. One day when him an' me was on the train she got away on one of them mountain grades, an' the first thing we knowed she was flyin' down the track at about ninety miles an hour, with nothin' in sight but the ditch an' the happy hounds in the grounds, when she come to the end. I twisted 'em down as hard as I could all along the tops, an' then of a sudden I see Mike crawlin' along toward the end of one of the cars on all fours, with his face the color of milk. I thought he was gettin' ready to jump, an' I see his finish if he did."

"Mike," I says, "for heaven's sake don't jump!"

"He clamps his fingers on the runnin' board to give him a chance to turn round an' lookin' at me contentions, answers:

"Jump, is it? Do yez think I'd be after jumpin' an' me makin' money as fast as I am?"—Portland Oregonian.

A Boston Translation.
Little Emerson—Mamma, I find no marginal note in elucidation of this expression, which I observe frequently occur in my volume of "Fairy Tale Classics," "With bated breath." What is the proper interpretation of the phrase?

Mamma—"With bated breath," my son, commonly occurs in fairy tales. Your father often returns from piscatorial excursions with bated breath. The phrase in such instances, however, has no significance as applying to the person employed to allure the fish, but is merely an elastic term of dubious meaning and suspicious origin, utilized, as I have already intimated, simply because of the sanction which it has gained by customary usage in fairy tales generally. Do you comprehend, Emerson?

Little Emerson—Perfectly, mamma.—Yankee

Help... Nature

Babies and children need proper food, rarely ever medicine. If they do not thrive on their food something is wrong. They need a little help to get their digestive machinery working properly.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF COD LIVER OIL WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME & SODA

will generally correct this difficulty.

If you will put from one-fourth to half a teaspoonful in baby's bottle three or four times a day you will soon see a marked improvement. For larger children, from half to a teaspoonful, according to age, dissolved in their milk, if you so desire, will very soon show its great nourishing power. If the mother's milk does not nourish the baby, she needs the emulsion. It will show an effect at once both upon mother and child.

50c. and $1.00, all druggists.
SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

Admirable Caution.
Book Agent—Is the head of the house in?

Servant—Yes, he's in the library trying to write a letter on a new typewriter he has just bought.

Book Agent (hastily)—I'll call again.

African Rivers.
All the rivers of Africa have remarkable peculiarities. They seek the ocean that is farthest away from their source. Their course is always broken by falls, and their mouths are stopped by numerous sandbanks.

Constitution means dullness.
Depression, headache, generally disordered health. Dr. Witt's Little Early Risers stimulate the liver, open the bowels and relieve this condition. Safe, speedy and thorough. They never gripe. Favorite pills. Kerr's Pharmacy, Jackson.

Good Hearted Busybodies.
There are thousands of good people in this world who, having very little trouble in managing their own affairs, spend their leisure hours in making plans for their neighbors and constituting themselves self-appointed general managers of other men's lives.

Among more positively aggravating than the disclosures of these schemes can hardly be conceived when they are made to reticent, thinking persons who are using every effort to control the circumstances which surround them to the best advantage. To have concentrated every energy to the amendment of adverse influences and then have some eager, energetic friend come upon you suddenly and ask you, much as if waking you from a lethargy, "Why don't you do this and so?" is a severe test of your temper and your affection for the speaker.

But, after all, it was kindly meant, and these good hearted busybodies, whose "fads" is the regulating of their friends' families, meant to lend you a helping hand. We are taking away what stands in the place of a full purse and the use of an uplifting lever when we refuse to listen.—New York Post.

A Riddle Making Epoch.
There have been epochs at which riddle making has been more especially in vogue, and such epochs would appear to occur at seasons of fresh intellectual awakening. Such an epoch there was at the first glimmering of new intellectual light in the second half of the seventeenth century. This was the age of Leibniz, bishop of Sherborne, the first in the roll of Anglo-Latin poets. He left a considerable number of enigmas in Latin hexameters, and they have been repeatedly printed.

Aldhelm died in 1709. Before his time there was a collection of Latin riddles that bore the name of Symphosius. Of this work the date is unknown. We only know that Aldhelm used it, and we may infer that it was then a recent product. The riddles of Symphosius were uniform in shape, consisting each of three hexameter lines.—Cornhill Magazine.

Dumas, Father and Son.
A story is told about the two Dumas, father and son, which illustrates the pleasant relations between the two. The son had written his first successful novel, and the father wrote him a letter of congratulation, which he began in the formal manner of "Dear Sir." This letter through some accident addressed to a total stranger and merely thanked the author for the pleasure the book had given him. Dumas' answer in this manner:

Sir—I thank you most heartily for your kind letter. Praise from you is especially appreciated by me, as I have always heard of you as the most enthusiastic admirer of my father, who also makes some pretension of being a novelist.

The Highest Balloon Altitude.
Dr. Bersen and Dr. Surging of the Berlin Meteorological institute, seated in a balloon ascent the highest altitude on record. They first went up to the height of 30,000 feet, losing consciousness for brief intervals. In spite of the risk they continued to ascend to 33,700 feet, when one of them became completely unconscious and could not be aroused. The other, after making a great effort in opening the valve to descend, also became insensible, and neither of them recovered till the balloon dropped to 16,000 feet, at the end of an hour's time.

Marriage in Arabia.
With the Arab's first cousin of the gentler sex holds an option on the young man, and if he desires to wed outside of the family he must first renounce her and secure his release. The next in line is his deceased brother's widow. As Arabia and Turkey are polygamous countries there is often a chance to provide for several who may have first claims on the bridegroom.—Woman's Home Companion.

Sarcasm That Failed.

A certain Englishman by birth who is an American by force of circumstances has been in this country long enough to absorb the American idea of humor. Last summer he was in London on a visit and happening to have business with a man on an upper floor of a tall building took the "lift" to reach his office. The elevator was one of those excessively deliberate British affairs, and its small-like progress annoyed the Americanized Briton. The only other occupant of the car was a middle aged Englishman, with a manner of peculiarly English seriousness. The man from America ventured to address him.

"I think I could make a great improvement in this lift," he said.

The Englishman looked seriously interested.

"How?" he asked.

"Why," the other man went on, "I'd make it go faster by a simple little arrangement. I'd stop the lift altogether and move the building up and down."

The Englishman looked slightly more interested.

"How?" he asked.

Sponges.
Sponges grow in odd, fantastic shapes. Some of them have an overgrowth resembling human warts. There are some suggesting hands, hats and figures of idols. These are curiosities and not marketable for practical use. In trimming them into shape many small sponges are made which are used for children's slates, for blacking shoes and in making paper. The uses vary according to size.

One of the largest sponges known is in New York city. It is fan shape and some three feet in diameter. For practical use it is worthless, but as an exhibit it is valued at $100.

The best sponges are imported from the Mediterranean, although Florida produces very fine varieties. These vary in price from a cent to $20 apiece, although occasionally fine specimens bring $50 a pound. The best of these are used in surgical operations.

Other sponges are the mandraka batt, the elephant ear, velvet, grass and sheep's wool, which is best for washing. The cheap sponges are used in washing carriages and by painters.

A Curious Indian Custom.
In the original settlements in British Columbia a peculiar institution occasionally gala times for the red men now and then. This was the "potlatch," a thing to us so foreign, even in the impulse of which it is begotten, that we have no word or phrase to give its meaning. It is a feast and merrymaking at the expense of some man who has earned or saved what he deems considerable wealth, and who desires to distribute every iota of it at once in edibles and drinkables among the people of his tribe or village. He does this because he aspires to a chieftainship or merely for the credit of a "potlatch," a high distinction. Indians have been known to throw away such a sum of money that their "potlatch" has been given in a huge shed built for the feast, and blankets and ornaments have been distributed in addition to the feast.

Celt and Saxon.
One of Sheridan's tales was of an Irishman who met a Briton, of the true John Bull pattern, standing with folded arms in a contemplative mood, apparently meditating on the greatness of his little island.

"Allow me to differ with ye!" exclaimed the Celt.

"But I have said nothing, sir," replied John Bull.

"And a man may think he as well as publish it," persisted the pugnacious Hibernian.

"Perhaps you are looking for fight?" queried the Briton.

"Allow me to compliment ye on the quickness of yer perception," said Patrick, throwing down his coat, and then they pitched in.

A Table Decoration.
At a banquet given recently in Paris by a French countess the guests received a most astounding surprise. In the center of the table was what appeared to be a huge pile of roses, and just before soup was served the roses parted, disclosing a large birdcage. This suddenly opened, revealing a beautiful young lady adorned with wings. She remained in her strange position during the dinner and introduced each new dish by singing a couplet.

Had Looked Out For Number One.
"Have you ever done anything to better the condition of any part of the human race?" said the very serious man.

"Of course I have," answered the person with the cold gray eye. "Am I not a part of the human race?"—Exchange.

A Cry on Marriage.
Sardines are a delicacy fit for any epicure, but the other fish was thus named up by an epigrammatic Cornishman: "Pilechards," he said "are like wives. When they're bad, they're awful, and when they're good they're only middling."—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Pecuniary Fatigue.
"Don't forget," said the willing worker, "that money talks."

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum a little glumly, "but I can't be wishing that you boys would select another phonograph occasionally."—Exchange.

His Last Venture.
"What is our old friend Harpud doing nowadays?"

"Oh, he's gone into real estate."

"That's the very thing I should have supposed he'd do."

"It was. He's dead."—New York Times.

Snow From a Clear Sky.

The most wonderful snowstorms of all that may be seen every winter in the Adirondacks are those that prevail when the sky is cloudless. Of these there are several varieties. Every week or two we would see what looked like a fog form over the distant hills and then coming drifting across the creek valley. Doubtless it was a real snow laden cloud that had been drifting along until it struck our level (1,300 feet above the sea) in the Adirondacks, when the conditions became favorable for the release of its feathery burden.

We saw these clouds fill the air with flakes that were driven along almost horizontally by a strong gale, although the tops of our old hemlocks and spruces rose into the clear air and unobstructed sunlight above the highest level of the snow producing air stratum. We even saw the snow so thick in the air about us that the trunks of trees six feet above the earth were not visible, although the treetops could be seen, and the sun shone down through the shallow storm with strength enough to cast distinct shadows.

We have stood on a quiet, sunlit hill-top and looked down into a valley less than 100 feet below us, where a snow storm was raging with violence and the temperature was frigid.—Scribner's.

A Man In the House.
There is a young criminal lawyer in Memphis, Tenn., who on the occasion of his becoming a year began the celebration of his birthday in a way that caused his household a great deal of consternation.

On the eve of the fete, shortly after midnight, the young man's family were suddenly startled from their slumbers by a loud voice in the house calling: "There's a man in the house! There's a man in the house!"

The valiant pater familias rushed from his room, bearing in his hands a heavy billet of firewood, to learn the cause of the disturbance and to capture the intruder. His son was standing in the hall, shouting at the top of his voice:

"Where's the man?" exclaimed the old gentleman.

"Here, sir; here!" proudly replied the young man. "This is he. At last I'm twenty-one!"—Memphis Scimitar.

Piper Legends.
The Wends, who, we believe, are the ancestors of the modern Prussians, are the center of many legends. The Pled Piper of Hamelin was a Wend; so also was the piper of the Harz mountains, who appeared so many days a year and played unearthly tunes and whosever heard at once fell into a frenzy, from which there was no escaping. All these piers and weird pipers assembled once a year at the Brocken, where there was a general carnival, the arch fiend leading the concert on a violin, witches rolling around and fiddling on the skulls of horses and the pipers adding the concert of their uncanny instruments.—Chambers' Journal.

Terrific Thunder.
The largest rainfall on earth has been recorded at Chera Punji, on the bay of Bengal, but the most violent thunderstorms ever observed are probably those of French Guiana. At Cape Orange, some forty miles south of Cayenne, a French naval officer saw the rills of the coast hills turned into waterfalls by cloud-bursting storms, while the crashing thunder peals were incessant and often almost deafening, so much so, indeed, that some of the sailors began to mutter long forgotten prayers, probably thinking the day of judgment near at hand.

No Cause For Care.
A Welsh editor had mislabeled the name of a famous poet of Wales.

"Who do you spell Llywarch Hen's name Llywarch?" asked a friend of the editor.

"Why? Does he object?" asked the editor.

"Object?" echoed the other. "Why, he has been dead 1,200 years."

"Oh, then, I don't care a toss," said the editor.

Stodded Indifference.
"Why did we arrive late and leave before the opera was over?" asked the youngest daughter. "It was very enjoyable."

"Of course it was," answered Mrs. Cumro; "but, my dear, we had to show people that we didn't care whether we got our money's worth or not."—Exchange.

Satisfactorily Explained.
"John, when you came home last night you talked and acted very queerly. You were lifting your feet endeavoring to step over imaginary obstacles."

"Oh, yes, my dear. All the evening I felt as if I were walking on clouds. You remember we had angel cake for supper."—Chelsea Gazette.

A Peep Into the Future.
John J. Clark expresses his belief in The Atlantic Monthly that a hundred years hence Manhattan Island will have streets in several stories and that rifles, cannon, warships and the wasteful burning of coal to make steam will be things of the past.

A Pecuniary Fatigue.
"Don't forget," said the willing worker, "that money talks."

"Yes," answered Senator Sorghum a little glumly, "but I can't be wishing that you boys would select another phonograph occasionally."—Exchange.

The complexion always suffers from biliousness or constipation. Unless the bowels are kept open the impurities from the body appear in the form of unsightly eruptions. TO CORRESPONDENTS.
We look to the friends of the Ledger to keep us posted concerning events of public interest happening in any part of the county. Our regular correspondents will be furnished with writing material and stamps for this purpose. Births, deaths, marriages, accidents, amusements, mining and other industrial progress, social topics, new buildings, persons leaving or coming into the county, are always acceptable. Give details of important items. Personal matter in how rough a shape. Avoid personal remarks that might give offense. Visitors between towns in the county—places beyond the county may be recorded.

TO SELL OR NOT TO SELL.

The property embraced in the water-sprinkling outfit on the Ione and Sutter Creek roads has cost the citizens, either by private donation or taxation, something like $4000, with an indebtedness outstanding of over $800 including the oil experiment. The whole business was more in the nature of an experiment than anything else. The oil has not passed the experimental stage yet, but as far as the water-sprinkling is concerned, it failed to create any enthusiasm for its continuance. An effort is to be made to pay off the debt and retain the plant for a while, even though it is not operated. If the liabilities are liquidated, the property will, according to the original verbal compact, belong to the county. We have thought, and still think, that the easiest way out of the difficulty is to sell the outfit as soon as possible, and use the money, after paying the debts, for road improvement. The outfit will rapidly deteriorate if allowed to remain idle. Like a building, it will go to ruin much faster when not in use. The chances are it will not be worth anything like as much in one year from now as it is today. If turned over to the county, and permitted to spoil where it lies, the supervisors will get the blame for it. Also, while it remains county property, influences, perhaps hard to resist, will be exerted to start it up, even against the judgment of the guardians of county property. The sprinkling experiment has not been in vain. It cannot be said to be a dead loss. It has given a fairly correct idea of the cost involved and the benefits to be derived from the crude methods at the command of the county, and to that extent has satisfied in a measure the public clamor in this direction. As a business proposition, it is wise to get out of a venture that turns out to be too big a load to carry, especially when the venture holds out no promise of improvement, but rather of deterioration, with the lapse of time. Amador county—for we cannot escape the conclusion that the plant, all contentions to the contrary notwithstanding, belongs to the county, even without any formal bill of sale from the subscribers thereto—can get its money back by a sale of the outfit today. It is doubtful if such will be the case a year from now.

TO ATTRACT IMMIGRATION.

A movement is on foot to attract desirable settlers to the northern part of California. The southern section of the state has built itself up by persistent advertising of its resources. It has no advantages over the central and northern portion of California to offer to the homeseeker. It has decided advantages over the bleak states of the Atlantic and the middle west. By making the most of its attractions, and keeping them steadily before the people of less favored states, a stream of immigration has flowed thitherward for the past fifteen years. In increase of population and wealth it has distanced every other section. Indeed, the rest of the state has remained almost stationary, while the south has grown to such an extent as to threaten to become the dominant power if the ratio is maintained for a few more years. Still those who have resided in both northern and southern California prefer the north both as a place of abode and for business opportunities. San Francisco and the section of which that city is the metropolis, realize that they cannot afford to be indifferent. They have lost much, and will lose more unless they bestir themselves. They propose to advertise their resources liberally. This plan has repaid southern California; it will pay other sections to do likewise. Amador county might do something in this direction. She cannot afford to be a laggard in the race of progress. For genial climate and healthfulness, as well as undeveloped resources, Amador is equal to any county. The fact that we have remained almost at a standstill is a rebuke to our lethargy. Let us move onward with the procession, and let the world know that we too have something to offer worthy of the homeseeker's consideration.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local application, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by inflammation of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound of imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Prospecting in Alaska.

We waited for Stone a day or two at Hasting creek, and when he came we concluded in concert to go on a prospecting trip up Nome river as far as the divide that separates that stream from the Kongrook that winds its way through deep canyons above and seedy morasses below. The sea was holding high carnival, and burst in snowy white caps everywhere. A steady, ceaseless mist was falling noiselessly upon the tent. A rowboat now upon its waves would have been as a log for the play of the storm gods. We must wait, the calm we know full well would follow, before we could hope to move. The next morning the sky was comparatively clear, with the sun pale and dim in the east, making a feeble effort to peep through the gauzy film-like drapery that hung with weird grotesque shapes before it. The ocean was lapping gently upon the sandy shore, after its long debauch, as if childlike lulling itself into peaceful slumber. The sea gull flapped his long greyish white pinions above the shimmering sea in ecstacy of delight at the departed storm. Tearing the tents down in haste, and drawing the boat up to the edge of the water we placed our things into it, while J. E. Stone acted as navigator, with J. H. Moore as assistant. This time the boat was easily launched, and slid out upon the water as easily as if it had been a lakelet. The oars splashed in the waves, and the boat moved o'er the placid sea with the ease and grace of a sea bird, and was soon lost to sight in the distance. At noon our tents were stretched for the day and night at the mouth of Nome river. Opposite from where we were camped was the U. S. barracks. Apathetic Uncle Sam's boys in blue came and went to and from Nome. A hundred and fifty yards above was the river ferry. Twenty cents was charged pedestrians to cross, but the boys in blue were privileged to go free of charge. This privilege was granted as a right to run the ferry, as Uncle Sam had twice built a bridge across the stream but each time it was taken out by the ice. Just after eating our evening meal a corporal and another soldier came staggering up to the tent. "Partner," said the corporal, "I'll give you one dollar to put us across the river." Stone looked straight at the man and said: "Are you in earnest?" "Yes sir," said the corporal, at the same time holding out a silver dollar. Stone, without a word, unlashed the boat and rowed them across the stream. They didn't wait for the boat to touch the shore, but jumped as it was nearing the edge, and made all haste for the barracks. Prior to their crossing the stream the man from the ferry was shouting to them to come and be taken across. In a few minutes after they had crossed, the ferryman came to the tent and the following soliloquy occurred: "What's the matter with the soldiers that they didn't come up to be ferried across?" "They offered me one dollar," said Stone, "to take them across, and I wasn't d—d fool enough to accept it." "Did they make any statement," said the ferryman? "None whatever," replied Stone. "I see," said the man. "They were off on leave of absence and five minutes more would have landed them in the guard house." Such then is the rigor of army discipline.

The next morning we started on our trip up Nome river. One man stayed in the boat to guide it, the others following by means of a long rope. In tortuous gait we wound up the low flat stream that ran sluggish and muddy through slimy sides. Patches of snow lay in secluded places upon the hillside, and out from the tundra gushed numberless trickling streamlets. Night came slowly on, and we prepared to camp. Tying our boat up to the shore we unloaded our things. On looking round for a good place to camp, nowhere could we find a place that had the semblance of being dry. Stretching our tents we set up our Yukon stove and cooked our evening meal. Stretching our oil blankets on the ground we lay down upon them with water trickling through the mossy tundra beneath. When morning came clouds hung everywhere in threatening attitude. Soon again we were towing the boat, climbing over brush, jumping cuts, and pulling like dry horses.

Ahead rose great detached ragged peaks, snow-capped and dreary in the distance. We were now opposite Buster creek, where we had an option on a claim for two years at 20 per cent. We got into the boat and pulled for the opposite shore. We tied up our boat, took all our things out, and struck camp upon a sandy place beside the mouth of the creek. It now began to rain and continued to do so all night long. The creek had risen and we were surrounded by water that had filled a dry slough almost around the tents. After breakfast we took our picks, pans, and shovels and started for No. 6 on Buster, this being No. 1 where we camped. We found banks of snow and ice 5 or 6 feet in thickness on the creek. When we got to No. 6 we found some men camped on No. 7. We prospected No. 6 in a superficial manner, and found it carrying fine gold. It was utterly impossible to get into the main stream to prospect on account of the superabundance of water that ran all over its bottom. We went again to camp, determined to come back, turn the stream, and prospect it thoroughly. The next day when we arrived at No. 6 the man on No. 7 said to us: "It is nothing to me boys, but you are throwing your time away. O'Neal does not own the claim he has sent you to. It is owned by Sam Blakely. Go to those corner stakes there, it will surprise you." At the same time pointing his long, bony finger toward them. We went to the stakes, and sure enough only 6 different claimants laid claim thereto. Not one of which would have objected or said a word to our prospecting it, but had we struck it rich then we would only have had six injunction suits to contend with. So concluding that there was probably more law than gold in it for us we shouldered our mining tools and started for camp.

Bank of Amador County vs. L. O. Gillespie, Chas. Hageman, Mary S. Cox, et al.—Suit to recover $2000 on notes secured by mortgage, and interest from April, 1897, at 8 per cent. Complaint alleges that on the 23d day of April, 1897, defendants Gillespie and Hageman executed and delivered to Mary S. Cox three promissory notes for $1000 each, due Dec. 23, 1897, June 23, 1898, and Dec. 23, 1898, respectively. To secure payment of said notes they mortgaged 160 acres in township 6, range 11. The first note, with interest thereon, has been paid. The other two notes, together with interest due thereon remain unpaid. Wherefore, judgment is asked for $2000 and interest at 8 per cent from April 23d, 1897; also for attorney's fees and costs of suit, and for foreclosure and sale of the mortgaged premises. Caminetti & Boie are attorneys for plaintiff.

Card sharps, of course, are plentiful enough in the mountains, but chess playing is a uly scientific game, having nothing of the gambling spirit about it. Mr. Bradley acquitted himself well, and sustained the reputation of the wood camps in good shape. He promises to have another tussle when he gets to the city again. He says he had not played a game of chess for eight years prior to last Saturday. He has been trying the efficacy of Byron springs for his lameness, but after taking a few baths was compelled to leave, owing to the pressure of business matters. He expects to go to the springs again, however, and give them a thorough trial. He says he felt relieved by the few baths he took.

Max Ladar, the expert tailor of Jackson, returned from the city last Tuesday. He has been below for ten days, selecting spring and summer goods. These goods are the finest assortment in his particular line ever brought to Amador county. They are all up-to-date goods. If you want a dress or business suit, call on M. Ladar, who cannot be beat in quality of material, excellence of workmanship or reasonableness of price.

The large pipe on Mattley's hill, which carries water for the Zeila, broke Tuesday afternoon, sending a small river over the plowed field to the creek, and cutting up the ground badly. Men were set to work at once to repair, and got it fixed up after dark. They had scarcely stopped the break, when another occurred just above, and it took two or three hours more to fix that. The pipe is an old one, and lies close to the surface. It has been found that a pipe exposed to atmospheric influences will wear out much faster than one buried a couple of feet in the earth.

Proposed New M. E. Church.

A meeting was held in the M. E. church last Friday evening to consider the proposition of erecting a new M. E. church in Jackson. The present structure has done service for over 30 years. It is sadly out of repair. The sills and supports have rotted badly, and the ringing of the bell causes a jar throughout the building. The meeting was attended by the prominent men of the church, and the present pastor, Rev. G. H. Van Vliet, and the former pastor, Rev. F. A. Morrow. It was contended that it would cost at least $500 to repair the present building, and to attempt to move it to a site adjoining would be apt to rack it so as to involve a much greater cost. The question of building of wood or brick was also considered. A brick church would cost over $5000, and it was said that a contribution of $1000 was promised from one citizen if such a course was decided upon. It would not be necessary to raise all the money at once, for one half the amount might be borrowed at a low rate of interest. The sentiment was favorable to the more substantial structure, but we understand no definite conclusion was arrived at as to whether the building shall be of brick or stone. Designs have been sent for from Philadelphia.

Increasing Dental Practice.

P. C. Erhardt, D. D. S., who for some time has been demonstrator of operative dentistry in the dental department of the University of California, arrived in Jackson Sunday evening to assist Dr. C. A. Herrick in his dental practice. Dr. Herrick having now leased the entire right suite of the Kay building, furnishing the same with all of the modern improvements necessary in dental surgery, is prepared to accommodate his extensive practice.

Money in Treasury.

By official count made March 3, the amount of money in the treasury at that date was as follows:

Gold coin $22195 00

Silver 6881 00

Cheques, etc 677 10

Currency 435 00

Warrants uncancelled 7075 34

Total $37263 44

SUTTER CREEK VOTES ON INCORPORATION.

The Proposition Badly Beaten—A Heavy Vote Followed.

The election to decide whether Sutter Creek should incorporate as a city of the sixth class was held in that town last Saturday. The day was anything but an ideal one for campaigning, nevertheless a very heavy vote was polled, showing that the contest awakened a lively interest on both sides. The pros exerted all their strength to carry the scheme; on the other hand, the opponents were alert and active, and in the few days preceding the election made heavy gains. It was evident to outsiders who happened to visit Sutter Creek, that the proposition was doomed to defeat; it was simply a question of what size majority the ants would score against it. Some idea of the interest manifested may be gathered from the fact that the total number of votes cast was 279. In Jackson last March the vote, with a much larger population to draw from, was only 316, including illegal ballots. When the officers had finished the count it was found that 106 were for incorporation, and 163 against, showing a majority of 56 in favor of Sutter Creek remaining in the list of unincorporated towns.

We congratulate the citizens of our sister town on the good sense they have displayed in securing this result. There is no doubt the leaders in the movement were actuated by a sincere desire to improve the town. They believed it would advance the interests of Sutter Creek. On the other hand, those who opposed it must also be credited with praiseworthy motives. They could not see where the benefit would come. Notwithstanding all that has been said in favor of incorporating, the people failed to be convinced. The promises of getting elective officers to serve free of charge, when the law contemplated that they should be remunerated for their services; also the pledge of no increase in the present state and county tax rate; that is, that the city government and any improvements that might be undertaken, should be carried on out of taxes and other sources of revenue diverted from the county treasury to the city treasury, were naturally looked upon as signals of distress; desperate efforts to bolster up a weak cause. The Ledger is the only paper in the county that failed to give its moral support to the movement. Every other paper urged the people of Sutter Creek to incorporate, without giving any solid reasons in support of their position. The outcome serves to show that the average citizen can do some thinking on his own account, and cannot see that movements depending upon gratuitous services are calculated to be redounded to the public weal. If the advocates of incorporation in Jackson harbored any serious designs of bringing on another election in this town, this set back in Sutter Creek will probably cause them to pause ere they try conclusions again.

Note Was Not Paid.

The suit of James Toman and his wife, Eliza J. Toman, against C. W. Randall and Dr. J. W. Keeney for payment of a note for $5000, has been submitted to Judge Sloss for decision. The Toman owned land in Amador county, and in May, 1900, they gave the East Central Eureka Mining Company the right to sink shafts on it for $80,000, which sum was to have been paid in installments. A payment of $5000 was to have been made in November, 1900, but the company did not have the money ready, and Randall, the principal stockholder, gave a note, signed by himself and Dr. Keeney, another stockholder. They testified that the note was to have been paid only when the property was sold for mining purposes, and Randall said that he was on the point of effecting a sale several times. Toman denied that there was such an understanding. As he was not paid the promised amounts he ended the agreement with the company and took the land again.—S. F. Chronicle.

Collision and Runaway.

As W. Roberts and his brother were driving in a cart toward Jackson Gate last Saturday night they met with a serious accident. The night was dark, and after leaving Main street, a team was heard coming from the opposite direction. It proved to be A. B. Camineetti's cart, and the two vehicles came together with a crash. Roberts' cart was badly wrecked, and the occupants thrown out. W. Roberts' injuries were such that a doctor had to be called, when it was found that he had sustained a fracture of the right arm, the elbow cap being broken. He will be disabled from work for several weeks. His brother escaped unhurt. Camineetti's cart was driven by Serafino Boro, who says he was proceeding at an ordinary pace, and tried to avoid an accident. H. Cramer, the insurance agent, was with him in the cart at the time, and both escaped with a few bruises. After this mishap, and while those involved in it were doing what they could for each other, Camineetti's horse ran away, and collided with a cart belonging to A. Picardo, which was standing on Main street. Both carts were sadly demoralized by the encounter. Two suits for damages have been started as the outcome of these mixups.

A VALUABLE PROPERTY SOLD.

The Donet Ranch Changes Hands.

Andre Donet sold his ranch and vineyard property near Clinton last Monday to Jean Lentillier, of San Francisco. It was a cash transaction, the purchase price named in the deed being $5000; Mrs. Boyle, formerly of Clinton, loaning $3000 of the amount, and taking the property as security. The purchaser is a young man, with a wife and one child, and he has purchased it with the intention of attending to the ranch himself and making it his home. He has plenty of energy, and understands the wine business thoroughly. Besides, he is contemplating making many extensive improvements. The completion of the Tabasco reservoir, it is thought, will make the place a favorite resort for pleasure seekers, picnic parties, and so forth. To this end he proposes to make an artificial lake and stock it with various kinds of fish; also to build a road or lanes that visitors to the big reservoir will find it the best and most convenient way of approach. The vineyard under Mr. Donet's management has for years held the pre-eminent place among the orchards of Amador county. He makes from the product of his vineyard about 10,000 gallons of wine per year, of such superior quality that he has had no trouble in disposing of it at remunerative figures. He has also been for many years the largest distiller of grape brandy in the county; making the spirits from the refuse of the wine grapes.

A. Donet, the retiring proprietor, is one of the landmarks of Amador county. He came to the county in 1849, and soon after his arrival settled upon the ranch which he has made his home for the past fifty years. He operated the Wildcat and Montreal gravel mines near Jackson Gate in early days, and took out a fortune therefrom. He also opened up a gravel claim on the Clinton ranch, which yielded richly. In a couple of weeks he took out $10,000. When the Comstock was in its palmiest days he opened a large warehouse at Virginia City and did handsomely. He was caught in the stock market, and invested in Virginia Consolidated and other leading stocks. When the drop came he lost his entire fortune, amounting to $88,000, and found himself heavily in debt besides. Nothing daunted, he returned to his Amador ranch, and started anew. Every creditor was paid dollar for dollar. He soon got on his feet again. His vineyard has proved a safer standby than the stock market.

For the last few years he has been troubled with an affection of the limbs, which has compelled him at intervals to surrender the cares of business to others. He is now 78 years of age, and has remained a bachelor all his life. Having sufficient means to support himself comfortably, he decided to sell his ranch and retire from active business. He cannot think of leaving Amador county, however. His friends are here, and he would not feel at home anywhere else. He intends to make his home in Jackson.

Sharp Retorts.
Lord Chief Justice Kenyon, whose parsonage was well known, lived in a large, gloomy house in Lincoln's Inn Fields. Of this house Jekyll observed that all the year round it is "Lent in the kitchen and Passion week in the parlor." At this same one said that though the fire was dull in the kitchen grate the spits were bright. "It is quite irrelevant," said Jekyll, "to talk about spits, for nothing turns on them." On the same Lord buying a second-hand suit of clothes and finding a pocket handkerchief left in a pocket Jekyll declared it was the very first he ever had.

To a Welsh judge notorious for his great greed of office and his want of personal cleanliness, complaining to Jekyll as to his being neglected, the latter said in his most amiable tones:
"My dear sir, you have asked the mis-taker for almost everything. Why don't you ask him for a piece of soap and a nailbrush?"—Gentleman's Magazine.

Just Like a Woman.
The coffee was weak, the toast burnt to a cinder and the ham as hard as leather, or at least he said so. His wife's long patience gave way.
"John Henry," she said, "I've tried faithfully to cook for you for twelve long years. No one in the town has better cooked food, yet you are always finding fault. Why can't you praise me once in awhile? I'd like to know that."

He looked up in astonishment.
"Well, if you ain't the most unreasonable woman I ever saw," he ejaculated. "Why, many and many is the time I've sat down to a meal and never said a word about it. Anybody would know there wasn't any fault to be found or I'd 'a' found it, and yet you are always complaining that that!
That's just like a woman—she can't tell a com'iment when she gets one!"

Equal to the Occasion.
A man was once given a large dog to take care of by a friend who was going abroad, but the dog annoyed him by always sitting in his best armchair.
One day a splendid idea struck him.
He came into the room and found the dog in his usual seat, so he walked up to the window and called:
"Cats! Cats!"
Up jumped the dog and rushed to the window, while the man went and sat in his chair.

A few days later the dog walked into the room while his master was sitting in his armchair. Going up to the window, he barked loudly.
The man got up to see what was the matter, and the dog rushed and secured the chair.

A Monster Vessel of Olden Times.
Ptolemy Philopator, one of the ancient kings of Egypt, is said to have built a vessel 420 feet long, 55 feet broad, 72 feet high from the keel to the top of the prow and 80 feet to the top of the poop. She had four beams of 60 feet, her largest oars were 55 feet long, with leaven handles so as to be easily worked. She had two prows, two sterns and seven masts beaks. On both poop and prow she had figures of men and animals that were fully 18 feet high. She had 4,000 rowers, 400 cabin boys or servants, 2,820 marines to do duty on deck, besides being provided with immense stores of arms and provisions.

Velocity of Meteorites.
The singular fact has been demonstrated that while the most rapid velocity of cannon balls scarcely ever attains a speed of 600 meters a second—about 1,500 miles per hour—meteorites are known to permeate the air with a velocity of 40,000 or even 60,000 meters per second. This unthinkable speed instantly raises the temperature of the air to 4,000 or 6,000 degrees centigrade.

That Apple.
A correspondent sends us a little story of his infant son. His mother was telling Tommy about the apple and the garden of Eden, when the child, who resided in the country and had a lively recollection of windfalls, remarked, "But, mummy, it would not have mattered so much, would it, if she had picked one off the ground?"— London Life.

The Talipot Palm of Ceylon.
The talipot palm of Ceylon has gi-gantic fanlike leaves, which when fully expanded form a nearly complete circle thirteen feet in diameter. Large fans made of them are carried before people of rank among the Cingalese.
They are also commonly used as umbrellas, and tents are made by neatly joining them together. They are used as a substitute for paper, being written upon with a stylus. Some of the sacred books of the Cingalese are composed of strips of them.

Silenced.
A young man in a railway carriage was making fun of a lady's hat to an elderly gentleman in the seat with him.
"Yes," said the elderly gent, "that's my wife, and I told her if she wore that bonnet some fool would make fun of it."
The young man was silent for the remainder of the journey.

Travel.
Travel frequently improves the human being, and it does the same for crude whisky, which, after a sea voyage, returns home ripened, and then there is the case of cottonseed kernels which go abroad from the United States and come home again as the "best quality" of olive oil.—Mexican Herald.

The English Pheasant.
The pheasant in England, if not exactly indigenous, is certainly effectually naturalized and, though originally from the Caucasus, may after a thousand or so years of acclimatization be looked upon as truly British. Tradition has it that the pheasant was brought into Europe by the Romans. It was probably introduced into England by the Romans. It certainly preceded the Normans. "Pasant hen and pasant cock" appeared in King Harold's bill of fare. Thomas a Becket is popularly supposed to have dined off a pheasant the day he was murdered.

In the time of Edward I. the price of a pheasant was fourpence, while woodcock (it makes one's mouth water) were but 3 farthings a pair. Two hundred years later pheasants had risen to twelvepence apiece and woodcocks to a penny, while snipe could still be had at threepence a dozen.

As long ago as the time of Henry VIII. the pheasant, as it still does, apparently led to a "tip," though on a somewhat lower scale than now. "Rewards for bringing of p'sents" appears in L'Estrange's "Household Book." "I'm to Mr. Asheley svnt for Japanese Porcelain Repairs.

In the manner of repairs those wonderful followers of principle and truth in art, the Japanese, have a lesson to teach us. When a Japanese connoisseur breaks some precious piece of po-tery or porcelain, he does not throw it away with disdain, neither does he try to deceive the casual observer into the belief that it is unbroken. Instead, he has it joined together, generally with gold lacquer, in such a fashion that the fracture is boldly shown and commented on, as it were, by the frank exposition of the method by which it is made good. Curious enough, a distinctly new and charmingly decorative effect is in most cases added by these irregular gold lines, while the sense of craftsmanship is tickled by the marvelous skill exhibited by the repairer in thus welding together the two dissimilar materials. Truth is preserved at no loss of artistic beauty. Indeed, once more it is made clear that the two may always walk hand in hand.—Connais-seur.

Old Moon Beliefs.
The health, growth and development of children and animals were years ago supposed to be influenced by the moon.
If the sign was right at the time of birth, they would be well formed and intellectual, but if it was wrong there was no telling what sort of creatures they would become. Every worthless fellow, every dog, rooting hog, fence jumping cow or kicking horse was believed to have been born under an unfavorable phase of the moon. Such Queer people or those who were of hateful disposition were children of the dark moon, with the sign below the heart.

First National Convention.
On May 26, 1835, what was probably the first national nominating convention in the history of the country met in Baltimore. It was attended by 600 men, a majority of whom were residents of Maryland. The convention was called by General Jackson. It was called a year ahead of the presidential campaign in order that time might be taken by the forelock in behalf of General Jackson's political protégé, Martin Van Buren.—Guntton's Magazine.

Not to Be Learned.
A dignified bishop while passing along a London street heard three vegetable peddlers engaged in a rather blasphemous argument.
Intending to rebuke them, he said to one of the offenders, "My good man, where did you learn to swear like that?"
"Lord yer, gov'nor," replied the brawny peddler, clapping him genially on the shoulder, "ye can't learn it! It's a gift!"

Classical Cannibal.
"But why?" asked the subchief of the cannibal isles, "do you insist upon having the man who fell while leading the charge against us served up at the banquet this evening? He seems to be hard as nails."
"Huh!" answered the chief of the cannibal isles. "I read in a book of poetry left by our last meal that 'the bravest are the tenderest.'—Baltimore American.

Don't Sneer.
Never bring a human being, however silly, ignorant and weak—above all, little child—to shame and confusion of face. Never, by petulance, by suspicion, by ridicule, even by selfish and silly haste—never, above all, by indulging in the brutal pleasure of a sneer, crush what is finest and rouse up what is coarsest in the heart of any fellow creature.

Three Hard Words.
There are three short and simple words, the hardest to pronounce in any language (and I suspect they were no easier before the confusion of tongues), but which no man or nation that cannot utter can claim to have arrived at manhood. These words are, "I was wrong."—Lowell.

The Fly in the Ointment.
Probably the worst thing about marrying a widow is the fact that somewhere in her cupboards and boxes she keeps her widow's veil to be in readiness in case she needs it a second time.
—Atchison Globe.

Medicine Bottles as Gods.
A lady missionary in Burma some time ago gave the following account of how she was the innocent cause of the worship of medicine bottles having been instituted. In one of her tours she came upon a village where cholera was raging. Having with her a quantity of a famous pain killer, she went from house to house administering the remedy to those attacked and left a number of bottles to be used after she had gone.
Returning to the village some months subsequently she was met by the head man of the community who cheered and delighted her by this intelligible "Teacher, we have come over to your side. The medicine did us so much good that we have accepted your god." Overjoyed at this news, she was conducted to the house of her informant, who, opening a room, showed her the pain killer bottles solemnly arranged in a row upon the shelf, and before them the whole company immediately prostrated themselves in worship.

MOTHERHOOD
The greatest ambition of American men and women is to have homes blessed with children. The woman afflicted with female disease is constantly menaced with becoming a childless wife. No medicine can restore dead organs, but Wine of Cardui does regulate derangements that prevent conception; does prevent miscarriage; does restore weak functions and shattered nerves and does bring babies to homes barren and desolate for years.
Wine of Cardui gives women the health and strength to bear healthy children. You can get a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui from your dealer.

In February, 1901, I took one bottle of Wine of Cardui and one package of Theodore's Black-Head Ointment. I had been married fifteen years and had never before had a child until I took Wine of Cardui. Now I am mother of a fine baby girl, which was born March 31, 1901.
The baby weighs four pounds and I feel as well as any person could feel who has been without Wine of Cardui for so long again.

Wearing Out the Nerves.
Many people wear themselves out needlessly. Their conscience is a tyrant. An exaggerated sense of duty, says the London Doctor, leads many a person to anxious, ceaseless activity, to be constantly doing something, overpunctual, never idle a second of time, scorn to rest. Such are in unconscious nervous tension. They say they have no time to rest, they have so much to do, not thinking they are rapidly unfitting themselves for probably what would have been their best and greatest work in after years. Self control of nerve force is the great lesson of health, and therefore of life itself. To understand how to relax is to understand how to strengthen nerves. Hearty laughter is a source of relaxation, as are also all high thoughts, as those of hope, beauty, trust or love. Relaxation is found in diversion.

What the Barber Pole Represents.
The barbers of long ago were barbers, but the rapid advance of surgical science has caused them to fall from their high estate. The gilt knob at the end of the barber pole of today represents a brass basin, which but a few decades since was actually suspended from the pole. The basin had a notch cut in it to fit the throat and was used in lathering the customer preparatory to shaving him. The pole represents the staff held by the patient who came to the barber surgeon to be bled. The two spiral stripes painted around it signify two bandages, one for twisting around the arm previous to the act of phlebotomy, or blood letting, the other for binding when the operation was completed.

Manx Servants.
Servants in the Isle of Man who refuse to complete the period of service for which they are engaged are liable to curious punishment. In a case before the magistrate at Peel recently William Corlett, a farm laborer, was charged with refusing to carry out his engagement. It was stated that the penalty provided by a statute of 1665 is that the servant is to be kept in prison and allowed one cake and a cup of water per day until he returns to service. Corlett was spared this punishment, as the magistrate was satisfied that he had not engaged to serve a stated period.

The Front End.
A young couple had been married by a Quaker, and after the ceremony he remarked to the husband:
"Friend, thou art at the end of thy troubles."

A few weeks after the man came to the good minister, having over with rage, having found his wife to be a regular vixen, and said:
"I thought you told me I was at the end of my troubles!"
"So I did, friend, but I did not say which end," replied the Quaker.

Could Not Breathe.

Cough, colds, croup, grip, bronchitis, other throat and lung troubles are quickly cured by One Minute Cure.
One Minute Cure is not a mere expectorant, which gives only temporary relief. It softens and liquefies the mucous, draws out the inflammation and removes the cause of the disease.
Absolutely safe. Acts at once. "One Minute Cure will do all that is claimed for it," says Justice of the Peace, J. P. Hood, Crosby, Miss. "My wife could not get her breath and was relieved by the first dose. It has been a benefit to all my family." Kerr's Pharmacy, Jackson.
